

President Persuades Nye
Not to Call Richberg
as Witness in Colt Case

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt made a personal telephone call to Senator Gerald Nye, Chairman of the Munitions Investigating Committee, the other morning at 9:15 o'clock. And thereby hangs a most extraordinary tale.

At 10 a.m. Donald Richberg, head of the NRA, was scheduled to take the witness stand before the Munitions Committee to testify regarding the Colt Firearms Company, makers of machine guns and automatic revolvers.

Richberg had written several letters to the Committee indicating great reluctance to testify.

Reason for this reluctance was the fact that a strike has been in progress in the Colt plant for some weeks, and the National Labor Relations Board had held in favor of the workers, decreed that the Colt Company was wrong. In accord with this, the NRA Board snatched the Blue Eagle.

When a company loses the Blue Eagle, every department of the Government automatically is notified in order that it may cease to do business with that firm.

Government Pet

But in the case of the Colt Company, Government departments were NOT notified. The War Department which had placed various orders with the company, received no notice that Colt was violating NRA codes. In fact the Munitions Committee unearthed a letter signed by Secretary of War Dern stating that until the War Department was notified, he would continue to do business.

Unofficially, Secretary Dern knew that the Blue Eagle had been snatched. Officially, he did not know.

The Colt Company gets a large amount of its profits from the Government. Government orders probably mean the difference between its profit and loss. The Government pressure, therefore, probably could have settled the strike.

Yet for the first time in its history, notification of the Blue Eagle's removal was not sent out. Obviously Donald Richberg had to do some tough explaining.

So 15 minutes before Richberg was to take the stand, Roosevelt telephoned Senator Nye. He asked Nye not to summon Richberg. Obviously it would have been embarrassing for the "Assistant President."

Senator Nye is not an ardent supporter of the President. He is also a bitter critic of the NRA. Finally he would like to run for the Vice Presidency on the Republican ticket. Nevertheless, he played ball with the President. He postponed Richberg's appearance before the Senate Committee.

Democratic Efficiency

Representative Bertrand Snell is short and paunchy, but when necessary he can display sprinter's speed on the come-back.

Recently he attended an informal social evening that the President held for members of the New York congressional delegation.

During the course of the evening Roosevelt turned to Snell and inquired:

"Bert, have you been following what they have been doing in Australia?"

"No I haven't," replied the Republican floor-leader. "I've been too busy keeping an eye on what you Democrats are doing here."

Roosevelt joined in the laughter greeting this saucy and continued:

"Well, in Australia they don't call elections by that name anymore. Election day is now known as Citizens Day. As a result they get out 90 per cent of the vote."

"Hm, that's nothing. Mr. Contained On Page Five"

New President of Stock Exchange Fills Washington's Specifications

No Market "Rigger", He Is Optimist on Prices

By Leonard Arnold
Central Press Writer

NEW YORK, April 13—If it is true that all American business eyes watch the stock exchange as the country's business barometer, the nation's industrial optics are today focused on Charles Richard Gay, who takes office as president of the exchange on May 13.

What they would see in person is a well-set man with sparse, iron-gray hair, casual manner and an air of knowing what's all about, but more than mildly interested in furthering that knowledge.

The man who succeeds Richard Whitney, who held the post five terms through the long years of ups and downs unprecedented in its history, is viewed as just the man Washington desires to see in the job.

Shelving of Whitney, who was expected to make a fight to retain his job but did not, and who has accepted a board post, is thought to suit the national capital equally well.

The reason Washington likes Gay may be explained in Gay's own assertion that in his career as a broker neither he nor his firm, the century-old Whitehouse & Co., ever had an interest in any syndicate, pool or option. In other words, he never was interested in "rigging" the market. And it is precisely stock-rigging that Washington is keenly disfavoring these days.

Gay always has been a commission broker. He has made a good living at it, executing buy and sell orders and strictly avoiding any flotation of issues and the usual subsequent practice of putting the issue over.

Gay is an optimist, convinced that better times and active markets are close at hand. As to the stock exchanges function, he views it this way:

Charles R. Gay
New York Stock Exchange

"I think a new day has come. The exchange is alive to the necessity of proving that it does perform a vital public service."

His View of Prices

And that service, he explains: "Stock exchange prices do not make business, but they do indicate the attitude of the nation's business men. They are the barometer of business conditions."

Here are some highlights in the career of the man who now is to head the "new deal" on the stock exchange:

He was born in Brooklyn in 1875 and began business as a $3-a-week office boy. He bought a seat on the exchange in 1911 when the prices were about at present levels. In 1919 he joined Whitehouse & Co.

In 1923 he became a governor on several important committees.

An Amateur Gardener

He is an amateur gardener and photographer and he takes his golf as pastime rather than a game, according to his own admission. Symphony concerts are his delight in entertainment.

He is well liked on Wall street, and the general talk is that Gay's ascendancy to the head of the exchange is what the doctor ordered —the doctor, in this case, being

Washington. If it wasn't exactly an order, it was in line with what the doctor expects.

Anyway, the patient likes it.

He based his contention on the fact that the Northland is the best market for 25-cent cigars.

RIGHT OF WAY

ALL MOTORISTS and pedestrians are familiar with the phrase "right of way," as indicating that under certain conditions, one of two moving objects, which, if they continued their course, would crash together, must take such precautions as are necessary to avoid impact. But few motorists know fully what the circumstances are out of which flows the rule of precedence of one moving automobile over another. This information must be gained by a study of the highway laws of each state.

The very prudent driver needs no law if he will drive cautiously at all times and charge himself with primary responsibility for the avoidance of accidents, no matter how negligent the other driver may be.

Even though the law is completely known, it is unwise obstinately to stand upon one's rights. It is a truism that an automobile driver who is in an accident which might have been avoided had he yielded the right of way lawfully his, may be found just as dead as though he had been on the wrong side of the road, or had illegally claimed the right of way at an intersection.

The law prescribes rules of conduct, it is true, but rigid obedience is not required where this would obviously cause injury. It is conceivable that motorist might be held liable in damages for refusing to yield the right of way technically his.

Motorists and pedestrians who insist too strongly on their right of way often have an ambulance making one for them.

MAN AND HIS HAT

IT MUST BE A SIGN of the times that there is more talk about man's hat than what goes on under it. In Washington, a committee of congress hears that the hatless lad has removed head covering from 42 per cent of the male population. In Boston, an editor as the result of his own investigations say this cannot be so. He estimates that not more than one per cent of the rugged sex ventures forth without fedora. In New York, the first straw hat of 1935 is seen, creating a furore in the newspapers.

As between the professional mourners of the hat industry pleading their cause before congress and the personal observations of the Boston editor concerning the prevalence of hats generally, we should say each is an extreme view but the weight of evidence inclines toward the latter. Except in Florida and, possibly, California, we doubt if there is a city in the land where there is a 42-per-cent aversion to hats among men.

Clearly the bare-headed male is the result of the collegiate influence, but even in colleges today the opposition to covering sophomore locks is something less than 100 per cent. A creature of style, the student is bareheaded in deference to its whims and covers for the same reason. Under such conditions there is no such thing as status quo.

The premature appearance of a straw lid in the country's largest city happens every year, and we pass it over.

Marrying a widower with nine children isn't so dumb. There's no question about his ability as a provider.

But now, if a man makes a better mouse trap, it's government agents that make a beaten path to his door.

While there are those who prefer to ride in the rumble seat the country will never be lacking in rugged individuals.

English chemists have invented a type of glass that bends, but the idea is not considered with favor by youngsters of two or three who would prefer to hear a crash.

A New England parrot has been left $2,500 in its owner's will and being a smart sort of a bird, will doubtless notice that its friends have multiplied overnight.

Strangely enough, Maurice Chevalier's list of complete women doesn't include Kate Smith, the substantial young lady who used to help the moon over the mountains quite regularly.

Forty years ago today the grocery store of E. S. Neudell was opened at its present location, E. Main St. It had been in continuous operation under the same management.

The dental offices of Dr. E. J. Lilly and Dr. G. D. Phillips were robbed of gold, platinum, gold teeth, plates, and other dental supplies and equipment. The loss was estimated at $250.

The city council adopted rules and regulations for the operation of the new hospital.

The Scioto river was slowly rising, due to a 24-hour fall of rain. The water spread over the bottom lands and was running over the highway west of the bridge on the Williamsport pk.

Chris Palm purchased the old Siegwald home on Water-st. Mr. and Mrs. George Jenkins and son occupied the property.

Senet Cryder, Jr. and Thomas Stockton were elected to membership on the C. A. C. executive committee to succeed E. W. Newell and Robert Denman.

YES, STEWART was in a mess. Consuelo and Louise had "gotten together" last night and had "found out" of his attractiveness to both.

"So that was it?" chanted Doug. "Right on the chin! Well, my boy, your sins will out, Lordin'. I'm glad I'm not in your shoes! Louise and Consuelo —" He started to laugh.

"There's nothing funny about this!" Stewart broke in. "Louise was hysterical last night. She informed me that it was either she or Consuelo —" Doug started to laugh again.

"Well, that's not a hard choice." "Can't you ever be serious?"

"What do you want me to do? You didn't expect you could go on indefinitely with the two of them did you, my Don Juan?"

"Cut it out! You know as well as I do that I refused to bring the gypsy girl to New York, and you also know if you have any brains at all that Louise can't be gotten rid of without a fight."

"Do you want to get rid of her?"

Blackmore munched a bite of toast before he answered.

"I'm not sure."

"Name-beard! It must be grand to have the women so crazy about you that you can't pry 'em loose." It was not sarcasm.

The other paid little attention to him.

"I want to find out where I stand with Consuelo."

"Afraid he hasn't heard her talk as I have about what she'd do if she caught 'her man' with another woman. I hate fights and tantrums. The hysteria from Louise last night is all that I can bear for a while. And gypsies are dynamite!"

"You ought to know. But all foot-aside, Consuelo hated Lou from the first moment she laid eyes on her and the two of them are never going to get along together in the same show. Louise is a flop compared with the gypsy. Why don't you give Lou a tidy little sum, use your own judgment there or ask my advice—and suggest that she go abroad—" He felt like saying, "and you go with her," but did not—and put Consuelo on as star of the show. That's what she wants."

"You don't ask much, do you? That's what every woman wants of me. She's just the same."

"Oh, nerts to you! You profess to be crazy about the kid and you don't do one thing for her. She isn't like the rest, not by a long shot. Good Lord, if I was in your position her name would be out front in electric lights tonight and Lou's would be in—"

Stewart lighted a cigaret, dragged several puffs and knocked the ashes against the coffee cup.

"Well, I might have known you'd lose your head about her. Am I able to trust you, or shall I take you off the job?"

"You wouldn't be able to trust me one minute if she'd have me. Women have the doggonesst taste when they pick on your ugly mug. You're the closest resemblance to an ice box I ever saw and about the same temperature. Here you've got two of

Stewart shrugged his shoulders and spent the evenings with Louise or at his club, and tried to tell himself that the gypsy was not worth bothering over. But nevertheless, he was annoyed that she did not cater to his wishes and he was more annoyed that the names who entertained the gypsies were the best known in town. If she was going out to cheap parties with unknown persons, his vanity might have been saved. No other girl for whom he had done a great deal and upon whom he had lavished expensive gifts had carelessly snapped her fingers at him.

We now know what makes us all act that way. We're not insane, that is, the great bulk of us, but the real trouble is that we're not sane, either, except a limited few. The rank and file are unsafe. At least that's the finding of Count Alfred Korzybski, noted Polish scientist.

That condition, he explains, is what makes us worry and fear, and is responsible for our errors of judgment. The celebrated essay on "The Frog" insists that the old croaker "ain't got no sense, hardly," and we have always supposed that was the trouble with most humans who, occasionally at least, act like dumbbells, and then kick themselves afterwards.

Anyhow, we're glad to know what the trouble is. Fool actions, goofy notions, bad bargains, and lame conversations are not the result of lack of brain or intelligence, but just unsanity, which, at any rate, though it may indicate a loose screw, nevertheless isn't so bad after all.

And why not? The state is now overrun by lotteries of all kinds and there is no attempt made to check them. Millions of American dollars go to foreign lands every year as investments in lottery schemes, and right here at home there are many so-called rackets that operate openly and with considerable revenue to the operators. Why not let the state operate the lotteries and give those of us who demand that form of gambling an honest run for our money?

The state has laws prohibiting many form of gambling. But they probably hear it if the proposal of the legislature to change the constitution is approved by the people and the state goes into the lottery business. The judiciary committee of the house of representatives has recommended passage of a proposal to submit to a vote of the people a constitutional amendment permitting the state to operate lotteries.

"WHAT DO WE PLANT?"

What do we plant when we plant the tree?

We plant the ship, which will cross the sea.

We plant the mast to carry the sails;

We plant the planks to withstand the gales—

The keel, the keelson, the beam, the knee;

We plant the ship when we plant the tree.

What do we plant when we plant the tree?

We plant the houses for you and me.

We plant the rafters, the shingles, the floors,

We plant the studding, the lath, the doors,

The beams and siding, all parts that be;

We plant the house when we plant the tree.

RIGHT OF WAY

ALL MOTORISTS and pedestrians are familiar with the phrase "right of way," as indicating that under certain conditions, one of two moving objects, which, if they continued their course, would crash together, must take such precautions as are necessary to avoid impact. But few motorists know fully what the circumstances are out of which flows the rule of precedence of one moving automobile over another. This information must be gained by a study of the highway laws of each state.

The very prudent driver needs no law if he will drive cautiously at all times and charge himself with primary responsibility for the avoidance of accidents, no matter how negligent the other driver may be.

Even though the law is completely known, it is unwise obstinately to stand upon one's rights. Albany is ruled by a powerful Democratic machine.

Anti-Lynching

With some of their colleagues, Senators Wagner and Costigan have become the most unpopular members of Congress. Reason is their championship of the anti-lynching bill.

Especially in the border states, this bill is putting several senators on the spot. In Maryland for instance, the Eastern Shore helped to defeat Governor Ritchie because he championed Negro victims of lynch mobs. At the same time there is a large Negro electorate in Maryland.

Whichever way Maryland Senators vote they are on the spot. And Senators from various other states are in the same boat. As a result they are saying:

"Why did Costigan and Wagner want to bring this thing up anyway?"

As a defense, enemies of the Costigan-Wagner Bill are preparing an argument that the bill interferes with the sovereignty of individual states to prosecute criminal acts within its borders.

NOTE: Senators Wagner and Costigan recently visited the White House, secured Roosevelt's pledge to back him in bringing a vote on the anti-lynching bill at this session.

'BABE' TAKES SHOW

CLUBS APPLE, BEATS GIANTS

Splendid Performances Included In First Day of Major League

By Davis J. Walsh

NEW YORK, April 17—He's fat and forty-one and around the brassiere he's as bouncy as an old souurette. In other words, he ought to stop playing ball but he won't and the funny thing is that he doesn't. I'm talking about Babe Ruth, the prominent right fielder and vice president, who seems to feel that we're bad friends and, rather than be impolite, I'll guardedly agree to dislike him, too.

Nevertheless, we have the tremendous spectacle of this apparently futile but definitely dangerous old man tottering out there for the 1935 baseball opening in Boston yesterday on uncertain legs and, peering anxiously through rheum-dimmed eyes. And all he was able to do about it was to drive in the first run with a single, score the second himself and then, in the fifth inning, he hit his first home run of the game and the year, a drive into the right field bleachers, 45 feet away.

Hit Off Hubbell

That's Ruth. He can't play ball any more—but he does. His eye is gone—and he hits one for 450 feet against the best left hander in baseball, Carl Hubbell.

He won the ball game for the Braves against the New York Giants 4 to 2.

A total of not worse than 125,000 people saw the openings, with Ruth the arch-principal. There were other salient developments, including the shin-bone of Dizzy "Delerium" Dean, brother of Tremens, and the spike wound of Mel Harder, Cleveland pitcher. Delerium disappeared in the general direction of a hospital after being hit on the leg with a line drive from Fred Lindstrom's bat in the first inning of the Cardinal-Cub game in Chicago.

Mgr. Harder went fourteen innings with Mr. Newsom of the Browns, before he prevailed by a score of 2 to 1 when Myatt's double scored Berger with the winning run. Harder, on base in the fourteenth, was spiked by Hornsby after trying to return to first base following an outfield fly.

Pitchers, however, were damaged yesterday without further thought. There was Lefty Gomez, of the Yankees who pitched a six hit game against the Red Sox and yet lost by 1 to 0. The point is that Wesely Ferrell pitched a two hit game. The winning run came across on Gomez's wild throw, followed by a dropped third strike and Gehrig's high return to the plate. The general belief was that Werber beat the throw, anyhow.

DIZZY TO SEEK REVENGE FROM CUB BALL CLUB

CHICAGO, April 17—Dizzy Dean is cut to square accounts with the Chicago Cubs for the way they treated him in yesterday's opener, won by the Cubs, 4 to 3.

Although the doctors disagreed, the St. Louis Cardinals' star pitcher announced that his bruised ear will be in shape so he can pitch tomorrow in the last of the three game series. A line drive by Freddie Lindstrom feasted Dean in the first inning. X-ray pictures showed a bad bruise on the leg but no fracture.

"Diz has to get some revenge," Dean announced. "Yes, sir. I'll pitch Thursday and I'll beat them. And I'll win one game from Pittsburgh, too."

But the doctor said Diz will be out of action for a week or so.

INDIANS START PENNANT DRIVE

ST. LOUIS, April 17—Cleveland Indians today were perched right where everybody from the Cincinnati Reds' bat boy to Babe Ruth predicted they would remain until the world series next fall—on top of the American League heap.

The Indians and the St. Louis Browns opened the season here yesterday by playing for three hours and five minutes before 2,500 shivering persons. The Indians finally emerged victorious, 2 to 1, in the 14th inning when Glenn Myatt, after two previous futile attempts, stepped up and slammed a beautiful double far over Ray Pepper's head and out to the left field bleachers, scoring Boze Berger from first base.

Mel Harder, who registered 20 victories for the Red Skins last season and predicts he will tally 25 this year, pitched the full 14 innings for Cleveland. The Browns made only eight safe bingles. Buck Newsom, nearly as tough as Harder, held the Tribe to 12 hits during the 14 grueling innings.

Many Features

Some stellar performances occurred in the first games—Wes Ferrell, Boston Red Sox right hander, limited the New York Yankees to two hits and shutout the Ruth-less Yankees 1-0—Dizzy Dean was struck on the ankle by a batted ball early in the game with the Cubs and was forced to leave the game—the lead he gave the Chicagoans was the margin of victory—Babe Ruth in his National league debut accounted for all the Brave runs off the Giants two with a home run and won the opener from Carl Hubbell—Cleveland Indians won a 14-inning opener in St. Louis with Glenn Myatt, veteran catcher, driving in the winning run—The score was 2 to 1—Mel Harder and Buck Newsom were the opposing hurlers. Those were the highlights of the opening day.

Attendance Varies

In the association Milwaukee went into extra innings to defeat Kansas City, St. Paul led by Marty McManus drubbed Minneapolis, 13-0, and Louisville edged Toledo, 3-2—The Red Birds did not get to open but were to try again today—Opening crowds were: Kansas City, 9,225; St. Paul, 8,585; Toledo, 2,000.

RED BIRDS READY FOR NEW EFFORT

COLUMBUS, April 17—After having cooled their heels for 24 hours as a result of one more kick-back from winter weather, the Columbus Red Birds and the Indianapolis Indians were to get together this afternoon and inaugurate the 1935 American Association season here.

Although the weather still was anything but favorable, it gave evidences of "tuning down" enough this afternoon to allow the two teams to go to work. The weatherman promised "fair and warmer" weather.

All the hullabaloo of the opening game ceremony planned for yesterday was carried over for today, including a downtown parade and the toss-in of the first ball by Mayor Henry Worley.

Bob Klinger is expected to do the hurling for the Red Birds while Phil Gallivan is expected to be on the mound for the Indians.

DARGUSCH "Man of Hour" As Fate of School Foundation Bill Is Debated

COLUMBUS, April 17.—Carlton S. Dargusch, the trim and dapper vice chairman of the state tax commission, became the "man of the hour" today as Ohio school leaders and members of the Ohio League of Municipalities locked horns over the proposed school foundation bill pending before the state education committee.

Faced with a deadlock between the two opposing factions, one charging the other with "double-crossing," the senate committee appealed to Dargusch, recognized as the foremost taxation expert in the state, to come to assistance and help draft a program to finance Ohio's $80,000,000 public school program.

The appeal to Dargusch was made by Senator James M. Matthews Jr. (D) of Clark-co, following the action of the Ohio League of Municipalities in adopting resolutions opposing the foundation plan as incorporated in the Traxler-Kiefer measure.

Mayors' Conference

He sent for the states' No. 1 tax expert after Ohio mayors, in conference here, had drafted resolutions warning that they would oppose the foundation bill until the legislature guarantees municipalities sufficient funds for operating expenses.

The resolutions included the following:

1. Opposition to the school foundation program, which mandates three mills outside the ten-mill limitation, unless cities are guaranteed a specified millage annually;

2. Demands for a larger share of funds from sale of automobile license tags and gasoline tax;

3. Opposition to the Waldfogel liquor bill, which would cut municipalities' share of the sale of liquor licenses 25 per cent;

4. Request for legislation permitting cities to borrow funds in anticipation of sales tax allocations;

5. Support of the Lawrence bill which would enable taxing subdivisions to refund outstanding bonds maturing this year.

Mayor Henry Wooley of Columbus, president of the League of Municipalities, attributed much of the current financial distress of cities to what he termed "double-crossing by the school lobby" when the last legislature was considering division of sales tax revenues among the sub-divisions.
